MEDICAL SHADOWS

The NeuroTexas Institute at St. David's HealthCare has partnered with the University of Texas to develop an internship program for students interested in careers in medicine.

The NeuroTexas Institute and UT have selected two top undergraduate biomedical engineering students—Jonathan Berezin and Renee Keller—for the four-week pilot program. Eventually, the program will have up to 10 students in each session.

The students will have the opportunity to shadow physicians and other medical personnel to learn about areas, such as surgery, radiology and rehabilitation services.

“By participating in this internship program, these students will be exposed to a range of concentrated, meaningful experiences in the medical field, and it will provide a forum for research,” said Dr. Kit Fox, neurosurgeon and executive medical director of NeuroTexas Institute.
